Thank you all for taking part which made the effort worthwhile. The idea of a ‘mirror’ image map came from experienced orienteers who were aware that the facility to flip the map in OCAD was an option. It has been tried elsewhere before but this was a first for SBOC, so thank you to the ‘mad hatters’ for not knowing what you were letting yourselves in for. The hardest part for me was working out the results as several had visited the bonus controls in the wrong order so lost the points gained for effort even if they came back with Xmas hats, ties, tinsel and baubles. I apologise if I didn’t make this clear enough in the final details and on the day and hope that it has not marred the fun intended. Thanks to Ben for giving up his run to help and to those willing volunteers who collected controls. Now you have an idea how Alice felt when she went through the Looking Glass!

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!
